

Celebrate Farm to School with FFA

The National FFA Organization works across the nation to help educate and engage young people in agriculture.

Agricultural Educators and their high school students can be a great partner for Farm to School programs to:

- Work together to develop learning opportunities at schools with ‘farmer in the classroom’ lessons
- Participate in experiential education programs at FFA locations or local farms
- Assist schools with their school gardens
- Have Ag Ed students put together game boards for elementary students to find out information about fruits and veggies they are eating. They could play games together at lunch!
- Create bulletin boards about local farmers and the foods they grow for display in the cafeteria.
- Hold an outdoor class with a dairy cow, hog, sheep, goat or chickens to teach students about the animals FFA students care for.
- Collaborate with school staff to hold Farm to School Month activities (October)
